dedication

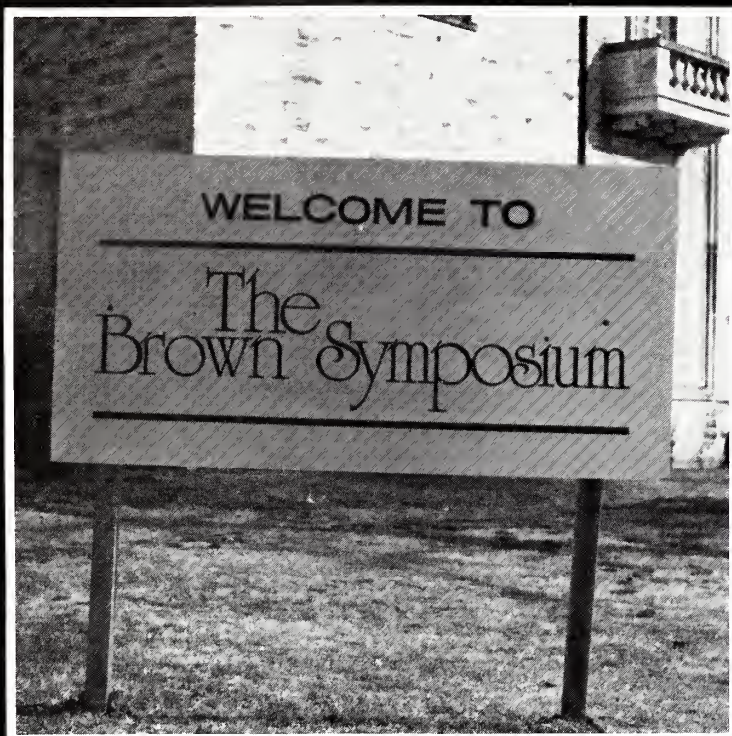

In January, 1983, Jim Woodruff joined the Southwestern staff. He has served as directors of publications, annual giving and development. Jim's responsibilities have been numerous — ranging from alumni relations to the annual Brown Challenge.

Jim raises millions of dollars annual from alumni, businesses and charitable foundations. The nature of his work allows little time for contact with students; however, those who have dealt with him through the Phonathon or other means have grown to admire him greatly. His quick wit and outgoing personality makes every situation better.

It gives me great pleasure to dedicate this 1986 edition of the Sou'Wester to James W. Woodruff. This is just to let you know we care, big guy.

Freshmen Retreat 1985: An Endless Cycle

by Kenny Simon (The Megaphone)

The opening scene was the same. The buses rolled in, received their cargo, and set off for the Greene Family Camp; the Jewish "Camp Hiawath" north of Temple. Yet another class of incoming freshmen have made it through that final barrier — the Freshmen Retreat, and are now ready to begin their respective college careers. Although not quite as exciting as last year's outing, this year did have its high points.

As the buses were pulling out, one of the retreat's leaders, Don Heins, had serious doubts in his own mind as to the final outcome. Comments such as, "There may be a shortage of beds," and "There's been a run of the grunge . . ." showed us exactly where his position lay. But from the optimists' camp, Yellow team leader, Rob Smith, felt that his team was "gonna win". Whether this prediction was a serious reflection or due to a loss of mental faculty stemming from his happy state is hard to say.

Smith's statement, however, is a good way to describe the sentiment of the weekend. The competition between teams was fierce. It lacked an element of friendliness that came through in the Olympics and especially in the final skits. Overall, people did enjoy themselves despite the temperatures of the day.

As far as the day went, it was so hot (temperature was upwards of 104 degrees Fahrenheit) that spirit died quickly. One exciting match of sit-down volleyball between Tan and Blue teams made one regain hope. The teams were tied nine all and trading serves for the final point to win the game. Finally, after a quick volley, Tan came out of the back to score for the win. It was a magnificent sight! Almost worth the heat.

People did get a chance to cool off, pool-side. It was perhaps proportionately as crowded as Miami Beach. After the tube competition, everyone took a break and played. The diving boards quickly became the center of attraction, with the likes of Ed Galloway with his almost ballet-like moves. The hero of the day, however, became one individual affectionately nicknamed, "Rambo," due to his attire. To the cries of Rambo! Rambo! Rambo! he would run from the board . . . and hold his nose. He was fantastic!

The retreat ended soon after dinner. Vague attempts at humor were made by all, especially during skits, which were tastelessly tacky. Ben Sherman finalized by giving a slide show and a good-bye address just short of being a tearjerker. Acknowledging the increase in growth of the freshmen class Sherman said, "We may be growing out of this place."

Whatever the case may be Southwestern's Freshmen Retreat does play an important part in the indoctrination of students to this campus. It is a time for good clean fun. The cycle has begun again.

Flag Ceremony Honors International Students

by Kris McGowen (The Megaphone)

They come from far away — over oceans, mountains, equators, rivers, and borders. They come from ancient countries and new. Most have grown up speaking a foreign tongue in a culture quite different from that of America. Their names may be as difficult to spell as Ewout Barendregt or as simple as Bernard Brown, but they all share one thing in common: they are foreign students who have chosen to study at SU.

On Sunday, September 22, Friends of the International House sponsored the second annual International Flag Ceremony.

In this ceremony the students representing their various native countries describe what their flags mean and carry them through the commons to be mounted on the wall.

The flags are arranged in alphabetical order beginning with Brazil just to the left of the American flag. Bernard Brown and David Walter are Brazil's contribution to SU. The Canadian flag is just to the left of Brazil's. It is placed there in honor of student Mike Hazell.

Francoise Mouroux is the French representative, and Prabha Ganapathy and Ashok Mittal are here from India. Kianoush Kian is the resident Iranian and Amos Sendolo comes from Liberia.

The Malaysian flag is next, representing sophomores Azizah Aziz, Noradila Ismail, Rosmala Hussien, and Nor Haliza Rahman.

Abraham Alvarez and Idalia Pinon are from Mexico. The Netherlands contributed Ewout Barendregt, Rutger Helbing, and Jurrien Pentinga, Maria Siu is from Panama, Fiorella Ceruti is from Peru, Lena Hoegfeldt is from Sweden, and from Zimbabwe is Ruth Gwindi.

The evening was highlighted by several interesting events. The Dutch students, Jurrien Evout, and Rutger all broke into their national anthem as their flag was mounted. All three gave a moving acappella rendition of what sounded suspiciously like a Dutch drinking song. In fact, Ewout Barendregt spent most of the reception afterwards trying to convince amused guests that it was indeed the national anthem of the Netherlands.

Maria Siu from Panama gave a thought-provoking description of what she interpreted her national flag to mean. The Panamanian flag is divided into quarters, with one red square, a white square with a blue star, a blue square, and a white square with a red star. She said that in her opinion the red square symbolized North America, the blue square represented South America, and the stars were the world and universe. In the very center, where all squares come together, is Panama, which is the bridge of the world and universe.

The most touching part of the ceremony was the opening address by President Roy B. Shilling. He said that the presence of the students from overseas benefits both the faculty and students of Southwestern, and "helps us recognize and remember our world citizenship." He expressed hope that every student here at Southwestern studies at least one semester abroad and that more foreign students will enroll here.

Alumni Association Awards

by Buffie Evans and Beth Yandell (The Megaphone)

The Alumni Association Board of Directors has proudly selected Dr. Robert L. Soulen and Charles Saterfield, Jr. as the 1985 recipients of the Mr. Homecoming Award and the Pearl A. Neas Service Award, respectively. These annual awards represent two of the highest honors given by the Alumni Association.

Mr. Homecoming is an honor conferred by the Alumni Association on a member of the faculty as a token of affection and respect to one who has played an important part in the college days of grateful students. Sometimes the award is Mrs. or Miss Homecoming, but it always carries with it a special meaning to the recipient; it means that graduates recall with appreciation what the recipient contributed to the education and general maturity of students during important formative years.

One of the faculty members most exemplifying these required qualities is Dr. Robert Soulen. Originally from Chicago, Illinois, Dr. Soulen received his B.A. in Chemistry and Physics from Baker University in 1954. In 1955, he entered the Army Signal Corps and received a diploma in microwave radio repair. After serving in the army, he continued his education at Kansas State University, where in 1960 he received a Ph.D. in Organic Chemistry. Dr. Soulen then joined the Jefferson Chemical Company of Austin where he worked as a Senior Research Chemist. Motivated by a desire to work with people, he left his exploratory research to join the faculty of Southwestern in 1964 as the first Brown Chairholder. Dr. Soulen finds his field "fascinating and easy to teach" because he enjoys the subject matter so much. This job also enables him to study and research on his own.

The Pearl A. Neas Service Award was established for the purpose of recognizing long and faithful service to the University. The Award is named for the late Miss Pearl A. Neas who served Southwestern for 49 years, 38 of them as registrar. The recipient of the 1985 award is Charles Saterfield. Mr. Saterfield is a cook for the University Commons. He has been employed by Southwestern since 1959. He is married and has four children, two of which are S.U. graduates.

He is also active in church and civic affairs. Mr. Saterfield was Financial Secretary for his church from 1975 to 1984 and was Trustee in 1984. He also served on the Urban Renewal Board and on the Bicentennial Committee. In 1983, he was awarded the Citizen of the Year Award by the Citizen Memorial Association.

Dr. Soulen and Mr. Saterfield are to be commended for their tremendous contributions to the University, both awards are distinctive and meaningful, and the recipients are chosen with care. Congratulations to these men!

Phonathon Raises Money And A Horse For Southwestern

by Kris McGowen (The Megaphone)

Ten years ago, when Southwestern was in financial trouble, the Brown Foundation of Houston set up the Brown Challenge, which matches gifts from alumni and friends at least $1:$1. If an alumni increases his contribution over last year's, the Foundation will double or triple it depending on the amount. To raise money for this challenge, S.U. set up the Phonathon, an annual solicitation of the alumni to contribute as much as is possible.

This year's Phonathon began on October 20 and is scheduled to continue through November 7. After the October 29th session, the Phonathon had raised $48,782 and one registered Arabian foal. The goal is to beat last year's record of $73,000 during the next six sessions.

The Brown Challenge annually meets about 20 percent of Southwestern's instructional budget. The Challenge affects things like scholarships and financial aid, the size and quality of the faculty and staff, various educational resources, etc.

"One way to look at it is this: your tuition pays less than half of the actual cost of your education. A big part of the difference comes from alumni support every year. So it's crucial that we encourage alumni to support the University," said Jim Woodruff, Associate Director of Development.

More important than raising money, though, is that through proven alumni support philanthropists and foundations are more likely to agree to support the University through very large gifts. In other words, if the people who know Southwestern best, its former students, support the university, then other groups and individuals are more likely to do the same.

The remaining sessions of the Phonathon are tonight (Thursday) from 6:30 to 9, Saturday morning, 9 until 1 p.m., Sunday and Monday nights, 6:30 to 9, and Wednesday and Thursday nights, 6:30 to 9. The program may be extended a few more nights if people are interested in helping. The Phonathon is being held in the Mood-Bridwell Atrium.

The main work behind the program is provided by students willing to donate their time to helping the university. This year Bob Boger, Kate Butler, John Hill, Gaylon Morris, Whitney Anderson, Jan Perkins, Daniel Zorn, Lara Degenhart, Richard Light, Amy Smith, Julie Reeves, Jana Jordan, Irene Patterson, Steve Rucinski and others have been very effective in helping the university.

"We need better participation, and people can drop by anytime even for 20 or 30 minutes. People are having a good time calling up these alumni, and it's just an interesting, productive event," said Woodruff. "We're hoping in the next six calling sessions we can get even more people to come by."

The top four callers and one wild card will win a ski trip this year at Spring Break. The competition is based on the three best nights, so attendance every night is not absolutely necessary to compete.

"Plus, there are door prizes and a general air of wild excitement, particularly when Mary Akin is racing around," Woodruff said.

Tornado Waltzes Through Georgetown

(The Megaphone)

SU — December 10, about 5 p.m., the weather scene in Georgetown reached its apex for the year as a tornado blew in South from Round Rock. The tornado lasted about ten minutes, but not without leaving behind a small impression on those who witnessed its brief stay.

It came along the eastern edge of town through Rabbit Hill; the Quail Valley subdivision, Hutto Rd., and the tip of Southwestern before heading out of town. It managed to get the attention of SU President, Roy B. Shilling, Jr. as it went in between the old International House and the Shilling's backyard. The tornado uprooted part of the fencework and small trees as well as taking with it parts of older trees on the edge of the golf course. SU groundscrew spent the cold Wednesday morning removing the debris.

The city of Georgetown had its own crew busy cleaning debris from the tornado's wake, mostly along Hutto Rd. and surrounding area, Tuesday evening and early Wednesday morning. Five men were busy last night fighting time to cover houses before dark with plastics to the one or two that felt the brunt of the tornado's destructive force.

Georgetownites stood on their cars to watch the tornado pass through the area. A spokesman for city cleaning crew said that the damage incurred was entirely structural and no one was hurt or killed.

SU Retires Two Old Friends (The Megaphone)

Two retiring employees of Southwestern University were honored at a reception Monday, Jan. 27, on the campus.

Sally Teinert, switchboard supervisor, and Ruth Thomas, executive secretary to the vice president for fiscal affairs, were the honorees at an informal party that included words of appreciation from SU President Roy B. Shilling, Jr.

Teinert began working at SU in 1966 as a housekeeper in Laura Kuykendall Residence Hall, where she says the resident freshmen women called her their "mom away from home."

Teinert has vivid memories of those years. She says she can't forget the $1 an hour wage or the starched white dress that was her uniform.

After several years as housekeeper in the LK residence hall, Teinert switched to working in the Cullen building and Herman Brown/Moody-Shearn residence halls.

In 1981 she became a switchboard operator, working the 3-11 pm shift, and in 1984 she took on a new challenge as switchboard supervisor.

An enjoyable part of her job, she says, has been getting to know the students. In fact, some of SU's female alumni still recognize her voice on the phone.

"I sure am going to miss this place," Teinert said. "I hate to retire, but my husband wants me to enjoy life with him."

Teinert, who moved to Georgetown from Giddings in 1950, and her husband, Ernest, also retired, have four children, six grandchildren and one greatgrandchild.

Teinert said her leisure time will be spent cleaning house, gardening, sewing, crocheting and fishing with her husband.

Thomas, who began her work at SU in 1962 as a part-time employee in the business office, will complete 24 years of service this month.

She became chief accountant in 1963 when there were three employees in her area who shared one typewriter and one calculator.

One piece of equipment Thomas has never missed but will always remember is a temperamental and old check-posting machine, she says.

Thomas says she was one person who was glad to see the university add more desks and typewriters, and automate business office systems.

In 1970, Thomas became executive secretary to the SU vice president for fiscal affairs.

She has always worked in the Cullen Building except for the time the business office moved during Cullen's remodeling.

Thomas said she has enjoyed her job "because no two days are alike."

A native of Gonzales County, Thomas has been in Georgetown since 1944. She and her husband, J.D. Thomas, Jr., a native of Georgetown, have four children and five grandchildren.

Thomas plans to enjoy her retirement. "People tell me I'll miss working, but I'll be busy at home, visiting with the kids and grandkids, sewing, gardening and working on the farm. I don't think I'll miss getting up every morning and coming to work," she said.

SU Lacrosse Club Tastes Sweet Victory

by Beverly Couzens (The Megaphone)

Anyone who ever doubted hard work, dedication and perseverance pay off was proven wrong on Sunday, February 9 when the Southwestern Lacrosse Club won their first game with a 9 to 5 victory over Rice University.

Cold temperatures, light misting rain, and mud helped the game get off to a slow start. Rice scored the first two goals, but the Bucs battled back to tie the game 3-3 by the end of the half. Freshmen Jerry Young and Don Earls kept S.U. in the game with seven goals between them.

Coach Curtis was obviously pleased with his win against the Owls and is anxiously looking forward to the two games scheduled for Parent's Weekend. "I'm extremely proud of the team," said Curtis. "With continued progress I feel we can be competitive with anyone in the league. I think this weekend will let us know how far the team has actually come."

The Southwestern Lacrosse Club was started three years ago by former University of Texas player Bill Norris. For two years the team was plagued by inexperience and small numbers. This year the team said goodbye to Coach Norris due to a change in job locations. Former players Monty Curtis and Robert Young stepped in to fill the void. For the first time in the team's history the Bucs have more than enough players to field a team with a record number of 32 players.

One thing the team has had a good supply of over the past three years is support from the fans. Coach Young has been very pleased with the turnout of fans at previous games. "I'm overwhelmed by the number and their support," said Young. "I hope to see the number continue to grow this weekend when we play Texas A&M on Saturday and Sam Houston State on Sunday."

Georgetown Prepares For Sesquicentennial Festival (The Megaphone)

The Georgetown High School Band, the Sweet Adelines and local Scout troops are just some of the area groups taking part in Southwestern University's sesquicentennial festival Sunday, March 2.

The Georgetown community is invited to the campus that day for lots of barbeque, music ranging from fiddling to barbershop harmony, some horseshoe tossing and lots of visiting, in honor of Texas Independence Day.

The haute cuisine of Texas — barbecue brisket, chicken, pinto beans, potato salad, cornbread, cookies and brownies — will be served buffet style from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on the grounds between the Lois Perkins Chapel and the Bishops Memorial Union.

Seating will be available in the Union and on the grounds, but, to get the feel of a real Texas barbecue, bring blankets.

Tickets may be purchased "at the door" or through the University Events office, 863-1483. Prices will be announced later.

Attire is whatever you want to wear, said University Events Director Sharon Turman.

"We've had 150 years of history. Anything's appropriate — pioneer costumes, church clothes, jeans, boots . . ." she said.

As the school's contribution to the statewide ringing of the Bells of Independence, a historic bell from SU's original building site will be moved from the Mood Heritage Museum outside, and rung at exactly noon. If you want to tell your grandchildren you played a role in the historical ringing, feel free to bring your own bell, Turman said.

For the more musically minded, the award-winning Georgetown High School Band takes the stage at the Alma Thomas Theater at 2 p.m.

Barbershop harmony by the Sweet Adelines, fiddling and banjo-playing by SU music professor Dr. Anthony Adessa and his wife Laurie Adessa, and a Texas medley of song and dance by the SU Delta Zeta sorority at 4 p.m. tops the theater entertainment.

In between the musical tributes will be five to eight-minute orations by the three finalists in SU's annual speech contest. The topic? "The Significance of the Texas Sesquicentennial."

Throughout the day, games and contests, ranging from the action-packed three-legged races to checkers and dominoes, will be offered.

Local Scout troops will provide games for the younger Texans. Most outdoor activities will take place between the theater and the Union.

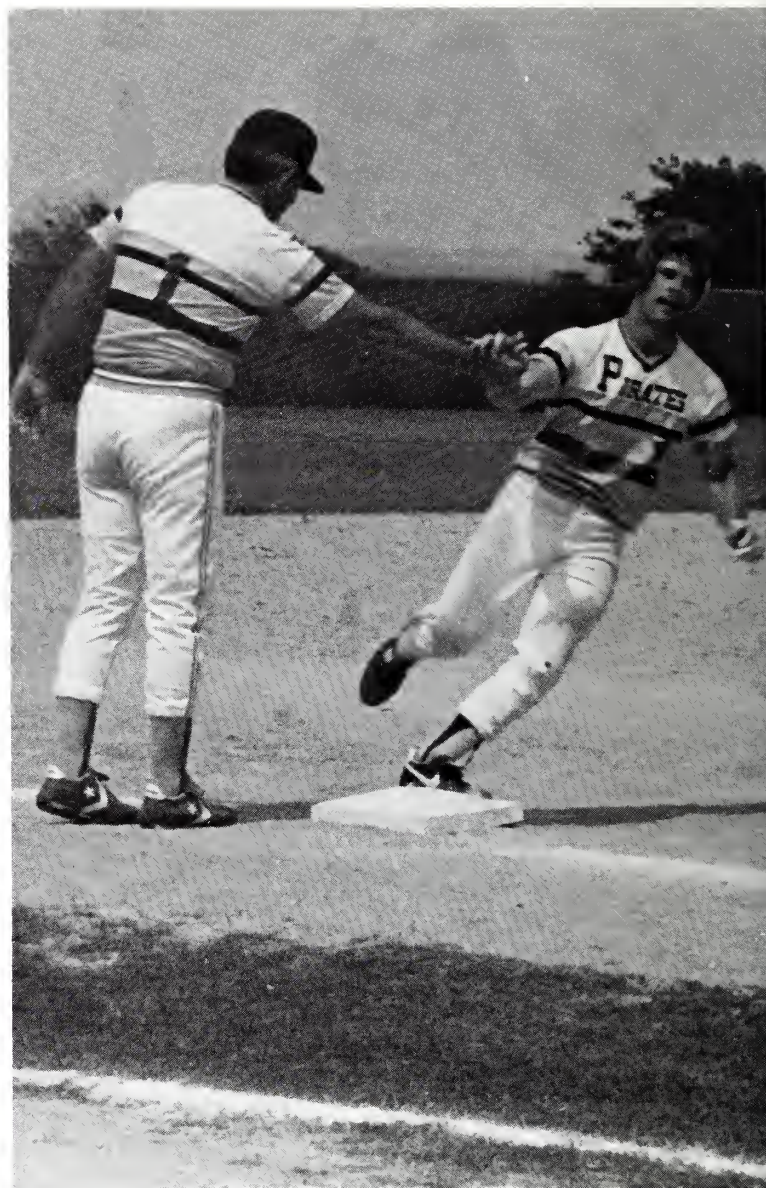

The Georgetown Heritage Society's exhibit, Evolution of Family Life in Georgetown, will open the day of the festival at the museum, and will be on display for the public.

In the event of inclement weather . . . well, that's yet to be decided but Turman guarantees no rain . . . probably.

In checking with data from the National Weather Service, she found that for the last three years, the day of March 2 was cloudy with lows in the upper 50s and highs in the upper 70s. The wind blew a whopping 10 to 12 miles an hour from the south.

"Whatever the weather, we promise a fun-filled festival for Texans of all ages," she said.

Late Night With Doug

by Kenny Simon (The Megaphone)

What do students do when they get the late night hungries when studying? Well, they used to go to 7-Eleven, but not since the advent of Chez Doug here on campus. The man's name is Doug Frobese and he is the one-man operation that SAGA has set up every Monday through Thursday, from 9-12 midnight in the Union Snack Bar. Since its opening Doug has been busy cooking, serving, and consequently making a name for himself.

Frobese is a Junior transfer student from Arkansas College. He is an English Major here at Southwestern and hails from the Houston/Pereland area of the state.

Doug got started because like most other college students he needed a job. Having amassed some experience in the snack bar field in Arkansas, he found himself talking to Bob Stage. Stage had plans for a late night snack bar operation to give students an alternative late night food stop. With his experience, Frobese was the perfect man for the job and having arrived at a fortuitous moment, he began immediately.

Although the facilities were much smaller in Arkansas, Doug had never experienced the one-man operation before, especially in a casual late-night setting. He has quickly asserted his prowess and skill in the minds of his customers, as students, many of them regulars, come every night to chat with Doug and take part in some of his backwoods cuisine.

Doug Frobese is apparently very popular with his customers, who come to him with smiles on their faces and a friendly word for the man with the spatula. Rutger Helbing, a frequenter of Chez Doug says that Frobese really knows his customers and that he (Helbing) "doesn't even have to ask for (his) coffee anymore."

Other names that people use to refer to the Snack Bar, are Doug's Place and Doug's Food Palace.

Doug says that it is just a job and that it "beats washing dishes." Doug also commented that as a transfer, it has given him a chance to meet a lot of people and make some friends along the way. Between his studying and his bagpipes and guitar, Doug does not have much time for anything else. When asked about his growing popularity with the student populace, Doug said "sure they like me, they don't want to offend the Chef . . . I just cook the food and take the money." For a late night break, a little bite to eat, and some fast and furious service try Late Night with Doug Frobese, serving until midnight.

Pirates Season 'Disappointing'

by Ed Combs (Georgetown Weekly)

Most baseball coaches would be satisfied with a 46-30 record and a trip to the playoffs. Not Southwestern's Jim Mallon.

"I'm kind of disappointed," Mallon said. "I don't think we reached the goals we started out with this year. We wanted to go to the NAIA World Series and we wanted to play the best baseball we were capable of. I don't feel we did that. We were just inconsistent all year."

Mallon is used to more. While the Pirates

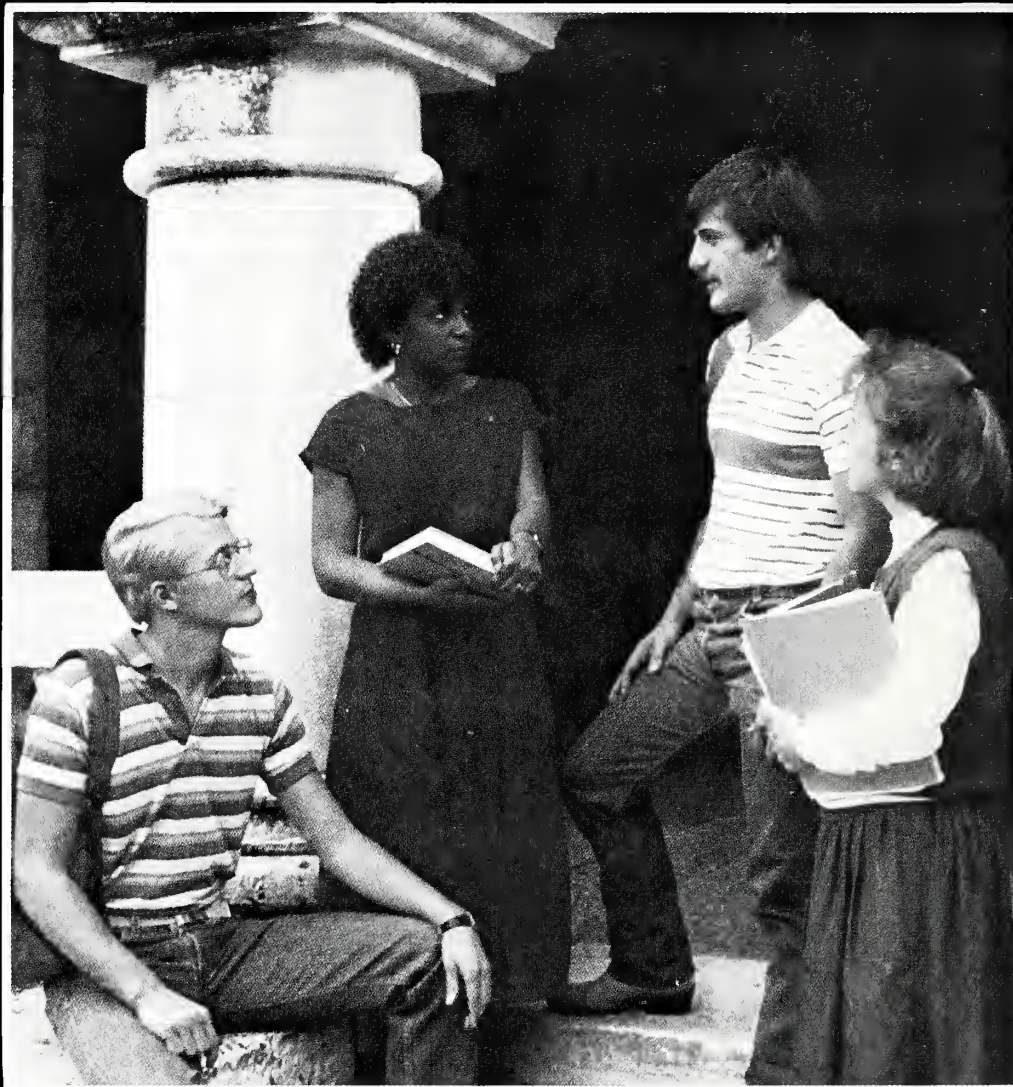

.605 winning percentage is respectable in a lot of books, SU's coach came in to the season with a lifetime winning percentage of .666.

"We had a lot of injuries, but I'm not using that as an excuse," Mallon said. "We just didn't play very well."

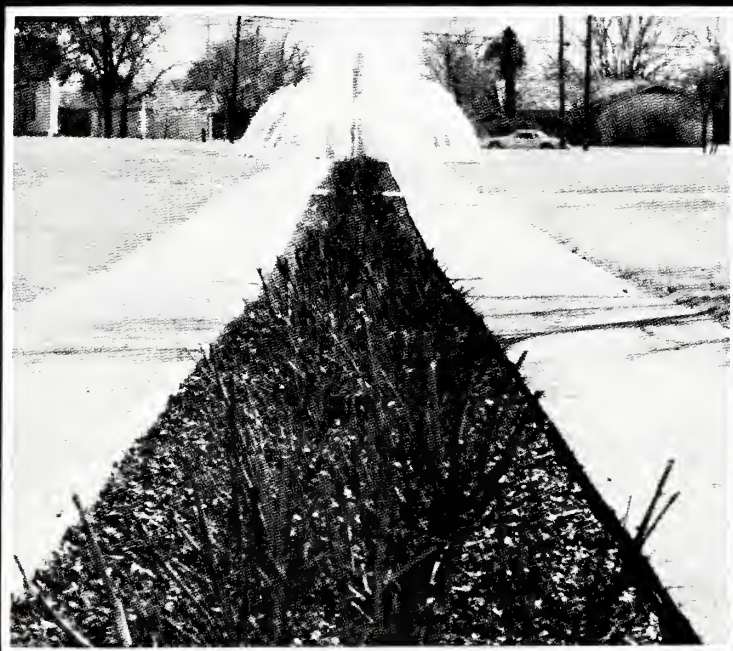

SU's inconsistency especially glaring in the District IV playoffs in San Antonio earlier this month. The Pirates began the double-elimination tournament with impressive victories of 8-4 and 8-6. Then they turned around and lost their last two by scores of 7-6 and 12-3.

But when the Pirates' season ended a little earlier than Mallon had hoped, he wasted little time in getting to work on next season.

OLD TRADITIONS . new directions

Sports

Under the coaching of Paul Peak and the court leadership of All-American Bobby Deaton, this year's Pirates were the talk of the town. Deaton played superbly the entire season, and his and his teammates efforts paid off with another trip to the NAIA Basketball Championships in Kansas City. Bruce Lewis, Wally Meyer, Jim Rathburn, and others made this team a viable contender for the national crown.

Southwestern University's volleyball season was definitely an exciting one. It came to an end with a heart-breaking loss to archrival, St. Edwards in 5 games. Finishing the season with a 28-10 was quite respectable for the Lady Pirates. They were led by Kathy Chapman, Tela Lindsey and seniors Tina Bachtold and Carol Fleuriet. Despite trouble with injuries, the volleyball squad were able to be winners.

VOLLEYBALL

Women's basketball has developed into an established, respected program both on and off campus. Since Coach Reda Clay's arrival in 1981, the team has excelled. Led by Lela Robertson, Teri Parvin and Mindy Lackey, the lady Pirates had yet another successful year. Winning a majority of their games, they brought honor and respect to Georgetown.

Plagued by injuries and just bad luck, the Bucs finished the season with a 46 - 30 record. After having played in the NAIA World Series in the last few year, being eliminated in the District IV playoffs wasn't very satisfying for the SU team. The team was boosted by outstanding performances from A.J. Waznik. He led the team in runs scored with 74, broke SU's single-season home run record with 28, and tied the old record for RBIs in a season with 84. He also led the team with a .579 slugging percentage. A young pitching staff, lead by Mike Anderson, Jeff Allen, Eddie Bazan and Mike Cavers gained experience, which will make the future optomistic.
